Senate Tables Proposal For 2 Spring Elections

by Jedd LeVar
Daily Universe Writer

Legislation separating spring elections into one for student body officers to be followed by one for class heads will not be voted on for at least two weeks.

ASBYU Senators tabled Marilyn McMen's bill Monday in order to make a further study and seek student opinion through a sounding board.

Proponents of the action argued that defeated candidates for studentbody officers would be able to seek class offices under the proposed bill. This would provide a wider choice of class heads, enhancing class leadership, according to the bill's author.

"There were only two contested senior class positions in last spring's election, and only three students sought to fill four senior senator openings," pointed out Senator Lee Ann Vanderford.

John Anderson, freshman member-elect, expressed "sincere doubt" that defeated aspirants for studentbody positions would "make another try" by seeking class offices.

"Those defeated candidates who do seek class positions would have an unfair advantage over their opponents because of the publicity they received during the first election," added Senator President Ray Ely.

Senator Jerry Benson proposed that class elections be conducted first, to be followed by the more popular studentbody ballot. This would eliminate many bad features of the originally proposed bill, he said.

Scheduling class elections two weeks after the studentbody election would allow too little time for setting up class committees—making for poorer quality functions," said Sophomore President Dan Lau.

The first of a series of forums discussing the bill will be held Thursday at 4 p.m. in 3200 Smith Family Living Center.

To Present Trophies

"Russian isn't as difficult as people think," said Kay G. Seely, former Brigham Young University Russian instructor.

IN SEELY'S opinion the foreign nature of the characters of the alphabet are what cause most students to avoid Russian. Characters such as the tsch, chel, shah, shahah and the yerih often cause beginning students much despair.

The Russian alphabet comes from the Cyrillic alphabet devised by the Salomonian monk, St. Cyril, in the ninth century.

There are 33 characters in the alphabet currently in use in the USSR.

It has been estimated that 140 million people in the Soviet Union speak Russian as their principal language. An additional 50 million people among Ukrainians, Armenians, Estonians and others learn Russian as a second language, making the total Russian-speaking people number 190 million.

STUDENTS who have taken Russian claim various motives for this often exhilarating and sometimes depressing experience. One avid student of Russian said he wanted to be prepared to collaborate with the Russians in the event of conquest of the United States.

Many science students feel the need for proficiency in reading Soviet technical literature in the light of recent technological advances made by the USSR. Russian is also popular with political science students, journalists and language students.

According to Don Gubler of the BYU Russian department, there are 70 first year students, 10 second year students and many advanced students and ex-students.

Gubler said that the prospects for the future are improving, and much research and study are going into the plans for the development of the Russian language department at BYU.

THE ARTS

By DEE WOODS
Daily Universe Arts Critic

Monday morning the Salt Lake Tabernacle Choir departed for its "grand tour" covering the eastern states and eastern Canada. In reading of the tour one cannot help be impressed with several facts which seem unusual if not unique.

The choir will take on its tour personnel that are all of one religious grouping—consisting of artists eminent in their fields and endeavor. A world renowned organist will be one of their accompanists, they will have arrangements by another world famous composer, and they will be conducted by two very able men of such high ability as to impress sophisticated eastern musicians and cause them to laud their work and welcome the choir's coming.

The choir's itinerary is startling in itself. The opportunity of recording with the Philadelphia Orchestra and the great Eugene Ormandy seems a monumental task in itself. When you consider that the choir will also present their weekly broadcasts as well as some fifteen concerts in two weeks, traveling great distances and being hosted many times by many enthusiastic individuals the whole tour assumes a task of staggering proportions.

The choir's tour will bring much feeling of good will toward the Church and the people of Utah. Their music, I'm sure, will be a credit to their directors and an inspiration to their listeners.

There is probably no musical group in the history of our western culture that has exerted such a continuous positive effect in the propagation of fine music. The proof of this is the choir's recognition from the European tour and the enthusiasm generated by their present venture.

HOWARD CONDIE—The 6-1, 220-pound native of Granger, Utah, will be out to put some holes in the Grizzly line when the Cougars travel to Missoula on Saturday for a regular Skyline game. A regular tackle in '57, Condie served two years in the army before returning to BYU.

New Mexico, Perkins Pick Up Momentum

University of New Mexico continued to gain momentum in the Skyline offensive race as the Lobos notched out 434 yards last week in their smashing victory over Arizona, 35-13.

New Mexico has accumulated 1669 yards in five games to take top honors for the second straight week. Brigham Young University, early season leaders, slipped into fifth place in total yardage.

The other two team categories, total defense and passing offense, are being taken care of by Wyoming and Utah. The Cowpokes, Skyline's top defensive unit, have held opposition to 1063 yards in five clashes, whereas the Utes lead the air lanes with 727 yards and a passing percentage of .523. BYU's Gary Dunn leads the conference among punters with an average of 46.8 yards per punt. He has kicked 515 yards in 11 times.

All-American candidate Don

Perkins is Lobo's "claim to fame," as the husky halfback leads in total yards gained and most points scored.

Perkins, who is number two in the nation in rushing, has carried the ball 71 times for 523 yards gained. He is already approaching his old season mark of 744 net yards recorded in 1957.

Ute Lee Grosecup is still master of the aerial route as he has completed 47 passes in 83 attempts for 600 net yards gained.

Cats Ready Saturday Tilt With MSU 'Tip

by Merrill Johnson
Daily Universe Sports Writer

Facing the winless Montana State Grizzlies after a three-game losing streak of their own, the BYU Cougars may take their first win in four weekends when they travel to Missoula Saturday for a matinee game with the Silvertips.

Leading the defensive attack and probably the biggest "horn in the Puma's paw" will be big, All-American candidate Stan Renning. Renning has been voted the outstanding linemen in eleven consecutive games starting with the second game of last year and continuing until the third game this year.

Cougar hopes rest in their running game, and if they can get their passing offense in the working order of the Utah game which they won Sept. 27, they should even their season record at 3-3 and extend the Grizzlies to 0-6.

A win by the Cougars would put them back in the race for the Skyline Conference title with a 2-1 record. The leading team at the present time in New Mexico with a 3-0 mark.

The Cougars' running attack still lacks a fast break-away man. Wayne McFarlane is the leading rusher with 272 yards gained in 65 tries for a 4.2 average. Close behind is Weldon Jackson with 233 yards picked up along the turf. Leading the passing attack is Wayne Starlin with 17 completions in 44 tries for 177 yards. This includes one touchdown pass, that being the one to R. K. Brown in the final two minutes of play in the Utah tilt. Starlin is the only Cougar who has been able to pass with any degree of accuracy or for any amount of yardage.

Montana's Grizzlies have shown some potential as was shown in their game with Utah, which close 20-16 loss. They will be playing their home game of the season, a four straight road game.
